A report commissioned by the Illinois Forestry Development Council

In cooperation with:

2016 Illinois Sawmill Directory

Forestry and forest products businesses and industry are economically important for Illinois representing 10s of billions of dollars from forestry, wood and forest product manufacturing and industry annually. In a recent analysis funded by the Illinois Forestry Development Council, forest economists Drs. James Henderson and Ian Munn estimated that milling of the solid wood and primary processing of solid wood alone provides 18,316 full time jobs and a total industry output of $2.59 Billion to the Illinois economy. In addition to solid wood processing, the logging industry also provides an additional 1,190 jobs and $122 Million in total industry output in Illinois. The goal of this project was to provide some useful insight into the current state of this sawmill industry in Illinois, as well as update the Illinois Sawmill Directory. This document was last published in 2005, near the peak of the US housing bubble and prior to the Great Recession.

A brief survey including contact information, sawmill type, capacity, species processed and origin, products, and ability or willingness to produce urban wood was sent to 157 sawmills included in the 2005 Illinois Sawmill Directory in December of 2012. Additional surveys were mailed again in January 2013 to sawmills that did not respond to the initial survey. Sawmills that did not complete and return a survey were followed up with phone calls and/or emails.

The directory includes over 70 sawmills are dispersed throughout Illinois, however the larger sawmills are concentrated in the southern portion of the state (Figure 1). Capacity size of the sawmills varies, ranging from individuals or small businesses processing less than 1,000 bd ft/ day to large commercial operations processing greater than 16,000 bd ft/ day (Figure 1). About two thirds of the sawmills use a band saw while the remaining use a circular saw, although about 10% of the sawmills have both mill types. There appears to be no relationship between sawmill size and mill type. Nearly all of the sawmills process primarily hardwoods, the most common of which is white and red oak, walnut, black cherry, and maple. Less than 5% of the sawmills process softwoods. The furthest reported procurement radius was 200 miles, with an average radius of 60 miles. Lumber, railroad ties, and mine timbers are the most common products produced. Custom sawing is more common for sawmills producing < 8,000 bd ft/ day. These sawmills are also more willing to process wood from urban areas.

Since the directory was last published in 2005, 75 sawmills (nearly 50%) have closed across the state. Eleven of these sawmills had a production of greater than 8,000 bd ft/ day, while the remaining sawmills were smaller in size (Figure 2). Eighteen sawmills are currently idle, all of which historically produced less 4,000 bd ft/ day. Many of the closed or idle sawmills cited retirement, lack of business, or state of the economy as reasons for closing (even temporarily).

Information for this directory was originally compiled by Dr. Eric Holzmueller & Nicole Jensen, Department Forestry, Southern Illinois University @Carbondale 2012-2103 and updated by P. Deizman, DNR Forestry in 2016. The e-directory is available at: http://mypage.siu.edu/eholzmue/index\_files/ilsawmill.htm. An effort was made to contact all sawmills in Illinois, however not all sawmills completed a survey or wished to be included in the directory. We apologize for any errors or omissions and corrections should be addressed to Illinois DNR Forestry or Paul Deizman at 217-782-3376 or paul.deizman@illinois.gov.

Using this Directory: Sawmills are listed in alphabetical order. This list includes sawmills that are open and idle (as indicated by **). A list of open and idle sawmills by county is available on pages 3 & 4. A statewide map of all open sawmills is available on page 5. Sawmills closed since 2005 are on page 6.
